Genetically modified crops- issues and challenges

This paper discusses the potential benefits and challenges of genetically modified (GM) crops. Biotechnology provides new opportunities for achieving productivity gains in agriculture. Agricultural biotechnology is a precise science that enables us to find the most beneficial traits, in terms of added nutrition, increased safety or greater ability to fight pests or diseases, and incorporate them into various organisms.

Key words: Agriculture, Biotechnology, GMO, Genetically modified corps

Correspondence to:
B.K. JAIN, Department of Botany, M.S. Science Institute, Navrangpura, AHMEDAMAD (GUJARAT) INDIA

Authors’ affiliations:
BINDU VIJAY, Gujarat National Law University, GANDHINAGAR (GUJARAT) INDIA